Good Energy makes the Sunday Times Best Green Company List

Good Energy, the UK's only dedicated 100% renewable electricity supplier, is delighted to announce it has been selected as one of the best green companies in Britain, at an awards ceremony held in Covent Garden, London on May 20.

Good Energy ranked 56th in The Sunday Times Green List 2009 and was placed third in the UK in a unique survey of workplace opinion, which makes up 30% of the overall ranking.

Juliet Davenport, Chief Executive of Good Energy, said: "We're delighted to be on the Green List for the second year running. Reducing carbon emissions and encouraging people to lead low carbon lifestyles is at the heart of our business. All the team at Good Energy uphold these principles and work hard to ensure that environmental commitment is at the core of how our business operates."

Richard Caseby, Managing Editor of The Sunday Times, said: "There may be plenty of environmental awards but this is the first that has both a robust methodology to measure environmental performance and a survey of each company's staff to find out whether the green sheen is more than skin-deep."

The Sunday Times Green List is a definitive guide to businesses with the most radically improved environmental performances. The survey takes account of the views of employees - who get to rate their organisation's green credentials - as well as assessing the environmental performance, policies and practices of businesses.

The Sunday Times worked with environmental consultants, Bureau Veritas and market research group, Munro Global, to devise the methodology for the competition.

The full list was published on May 24 in the Sunday Times newspaper.

About Good Energy:

- Good Energy is unique in the supplier industry by buying and selling only 100% renewable electricity - a major point of differentiation versus other players in the market. To compare the fuel mix of other suppliers please visit: www.electricityinfo.org/suppliers.php
- More than 25,000 homes and businesses across the UK have switched to Good Energy. Good Energy buys electricity from a pioneering community of more than 500 independent renewable generators that use wind, small scale hydro, solar power and sustainable biomass to generate electricity.
- In an official report entitled "Reality or Rhetoric? Green Tariffs for Domestic Customers" from the National Consumer Council, Good Energy was rated the greenest energy supplier in the UK. The report states: "For those consumers who want a green electricity supply, pure and simple, this is probably the closest they will get to it." Good Energy has also been named Best Buy for green electricity by Ethical Consumer magazine.

- Good Energy is owned by the Good Energy Group, an independent PLC, quoted on PLUS which specialises in investing in renewable energy. Good Energy Group has around 1700 shareholders, of which more than 90% are customers of Good Energy.
- Good Energy campaigns for more renewable generation in the UK, and is one of the original signatories to new Ofgem guidelines which aim to clear up confusion over 'green' energy tariffs.
- In 2008 alone Good Energy won a series of awards including: the Micropower Award for Innovation; the Wiltshire Wildlife Trust Award for Outstanding Contribution to the Environment; the British Renewable Energy Company Award and Juliet Davenport won PLUS markets CEO of the Year.
- The Good Energy Shop helps customers reduce their energy use and costs as well as providing the means for individuals, businesses and communities to generate their own green energy. www.goodenergyshop.co.uk
